

**Embroidery links

<http://www.artsci.calontir-rush.org/>

Link to the Calontir A&S home page. Click on links to link to A&S pages for other kingdoms. Several kingdoms have Embroidery guilds with bibliographies and lots of great links on their pages.

<http://moas.atlantia.sca.org/>

The Atlantia MOAS site. Go to arts and sciences links and then to Embroidery and needlework and prepare to get lost for hours.

<http://aeg.atlantia.sca.org/>

This is the Atlantian Embroiderers Guild. They have links to an annotated bibliography and a timeline with links to photos.

<http://www.bayrose.org/wkneedle/>

This is the West Kingdom's Needlework Guild. They have a huge annotated bibliography and a section of articles written by members of the guild.

<http://www.meridianembroidery.150m.com/megarticles/gembroiderysources.htm>

An annotated bibliography from the Meridian Embroidery guild. If you roam around on this site, there are also several articles with bibliographies.

**Highly Recommended Books

Abegg, Margaret. Apropos Patterns

Examination of pattern books of 16th c.

Beck, Thomasina

Everything I have seen by her has information on Elizabethan embroidery.
Available in many public libraries.

Colby, Averil. Samplers

Schuette, Marie and Sigrid Muller-Christiansen. A Pictorial History of Embroidery.

A classic – rare and expensive. Several of the items illustrated (in b&w photos) were destroyed in WWII. I keep hoping Dover will reprint it – lets write them and suggest it, OK?
